

FLO DAVIS, SOUBRETTE AT GAYETY, NOW STAR

Popular Actress Broke Into Stage Life
Through Sheer Force of Will.

Just like the heroine in the story was the leave-taking from her home of Miss Flo Davis, the pretty young soubrette of the "Sightseers," at the Gayety, this week, when before dawn one morning five years ago she stole away to join "Sliding Billy" Watson's company, then just about to leave New York for its trip around the circuit.

Her parents were very much worried, for Miss Davis was then at the tender age of 18, but she "just knew" she could sing and dance; she had been rehearsing four whole weeks, while her innocent elders believed her steadily but prosaically packing candies at Huyler's, and she had no fears when she started out as chorus girl to win her way in burlesque.

"I had never gone to dancing school, but I could dance some and sing, and I was just crazy to go on the stage," said Miss Davis yesterday, "and I knew I would make good. The folks objected at first, but when they had seen me work and felt assured that I could take care of myself, they agreed to let me continue."

Miss Davis was with Watson two years, coming to the "Sightseers" two years ago as soubrette, which part she has had since. Miss Davis now stands sixth on the list of most popular legitimate stage players in the contest now being run by the New York Morning Telegraph, and with the votes she expects to get this week she ought to be about fourth by Sunday.

CANDIDATE HUGHES HIT BY SENATORIAL HUGHES

New Jersey Solon Comments on Eight-Hour Day Law.

By FRANK R. LAMB.
(International News Service.)
Shadow Lawn, N. J., Oct. 3.—I knew that Candidate Hughes had the wrong end of the stick on the eight-hour law proposition and that sooner or later he would let go.

In this way Senator Hughes, of New Jersey, who, as temporary President of the Senate, signed the eight-hour law, today made clear the administration's view that Charles E. Hughes, by declaring that he favored an eight-hour day, has eliminated this issue from the campaign. After a conference with President Wilson, Senator Hughes gave out this statement:

"I have been very much interested in watching the way the '100 per cent' candidate would handle the eight-hour issue. Eight-hour legislation always has been a specialty of mine and I have long been familiar with the attitude of most public men on the subject. I know that Mr. Hughes had the wrong end of that stick and that sooner or later he would let go."

"I was very much pleased to observe that he finally declared in favor of the eight-hour day. Every candidate of whom I know anything has made a similar declaration at the approach of election day, many of them, however, expecting a change of heart afterwards."

Anxious to marry before their friends could find out it, H. L. McCann, of Aurora, Ill., and Miss Hazel Adams, of Savannah, found Judge A. J. Gray in a drug store and the marriage ceremony was performed there. An obliging clerk played the wedding march on a phonograph.

HIS OLD COMRADES HARD TO CONVINCE

Old Soldier Claims for the Past
Two Years Has Enjoyed
Perfect Health.

Because you have not been able to obtain relief in the past is no reason why you cannot be relieved today. Thousands of people suffer from stomach, liver, kidney trouble and rheumatism where there is a remedy at hand that never fails to bring relief in such cases. Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, that is bringing gladness and happiness into the lives of suffering humanity, is now becoming a household word in Washington. Daily the list of local people who have been restored to health is growing, and they gladly testify to the relief experienced from Plant Juice.

A recent signed testimonial from Mr. Frank Limegrover, who lives on R. F. D. No. 223, Sandy Creek (Virginia), and is a retired business man of Pittsburgh, will be of interest. Mr. Limegrover is well known in G. A. R. circles and served in the Thirtieth Pennsylvania Volunteers for nine months under Col. Thomas Baine, participating in the battles of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. He said:

"Two years ago I gave you a testimonial for Plant Juice, saying that it had cured me of a bad case of stomach trouble which I had suffered from for six years. My kidneys were affected and I had pains in my back. All the medicines I tried failed to help me, and I think I had died of them all. I suffered so with gas that it pressed upon my heart and caused palpitation and I felt very weak and miserable. A friend of mine told me of your medicine, Plant Juice, and advised me to try it. I noticed immediate results after the first dose, and after taking it for several weeks I was feeling fine and inside of three months was a well man—completely cured. From that day to this I have never had a recurrence of my former troubles; the pains in my kidneys have entirely disappeared, have had no more trouble with my stomach, and can eat anything I want without distress. I now verify the former statement made by me for the benefit of friends who were skeptical and thought I would not obtain permanent relief."

The Plant Juice Man is at the People's Drug Store, corner 7th and E Sts. N. W., where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.—Adv.

GEORGETOWN LAW MEN BEGIN SESSION'S WORK

New Course on American Legal Institutions to Be Given This Year.

With an informal reception by the faculty, Georgetown University Law School got down to real work last night. Announcement was made that a new course has been added this year, American legal institutions, which will be conducted by Dr. Henry S. Boutell, former United States Minister to Switzerland.

The faculty this year consists of: Rev. Alphonsus J. Donlon, S. J., president of Georgetown University; George E. Hamilton, dean of the law faculty; Chief Justice J. Harry Covington, Dr. Henry S. Boutell, Justice Ashley M. Gould, Dr. W. Baker, former District Attorney, Clarence R. Wilson, John J. Hamilton, Adolph A. Hoehling, J. S. Easby-Smith, Frank J. Hogan, D. W. O'Donoghue, former Assistant Attorney General Jesse C. Adkins, United States District Attorney John E. Laakey, William J. Hughes, United States Commissioner of Patents Thomas Ewing, William C. Sullivan, Hugh J. Fegan, Frank S. Maguire, Charles J. Murphy, Rev. Thomas J. Gasson, St. J.; former Ambassador Hans Taylor, Dr. William C. Woodward, health officer of the District; Charles E. ## WASHINGTON INCLUDED IN BIG GAMBLING TRUST

Syndicate Headquarters Declared to Be in Chicago.

(By the International News Service.)
Chicago, Oct. 3.—Federal prosecution of the members of a gigantic gambling trust, headquarters of which are in Chicago, seemed probable today, following revelations in the court of Federal Judge Landis, which showed that the syndicate has branches in all of the principal cities of the country and that its daily profits run into thousands of dollars. From the maze of testimony given before Judge Landis—some of it direct, a great deal indirect and much of it extracted by the "corridor" process—Charles F. Clyne, United States district attorney, is convinced the operations of the trust are nationwide and that action can be begun under the lottery section of the United States statutes.

Chicago is the center of the handbook betting on horse races throughout the country, witnesses have admitted. A news bureau which handles nothing but racing information is one of the most important connections. Branches are located at Cleveland, Buffalo, Washington, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Kansas City, Indianapolis, Detroit, Denver, San Antonio, Oklahoma City and the large cities.

HOROSCOPE.

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

Wednesday, October 4, 1916.
This is a threatening day, according to astrology, for the Sun, Venus and Mercury are all adverse during the early hours. Uranus and Mars are friendly in the afternoon and evening.

He who would succeed should avoid superiors in business, as the sway is held to make persons in authority arrogant and difficult to deal with in enterprises of every sort.

Persons who are seeking employment should delay until the Sun is in the western sky, and then they may have dubious luck.

There is a sign presaging peculiar conditions that affect all places of amusement today. It is not a promising aspect for premieres or for the first appearance of stars.

Writers should take account of the configuration, which may incline them toward discouragement. Important work should be delayed.

A sensational literary work is predicted. This will be by an unknown American, the seers foretell.

Leases and contracts are subject to unfavorable direction while this government of the stars continues. Do not sign agreements involving money considerations today.

Engineers and all who are interested in constructive work should sit tight from the rule of the planets this evening.

Mexico is still under a sinister power that gives little hope of speedy settlement of all difficulties.

Soldiers who wear the United States uniform should benefit from this direction of the stars, which, however, indicates that the army will be the source of much national contention and misunderstanding.

Solicitors of every sort should make the most of today's helpful influences. Dealing with animals, whether buying, selling or training them, should be exceedingly fortunate.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have a strenuous year. Trouble through writings is indicated. Those who are employed may lose positions or prestige. Children born on this day may be too impulsive for their own good. They have Venus as their principal ruling planet and should be endowed with artistic talents.

"ALADDIN" Makes Work Play

Demonstrated in the Palais Royal Basement Store Today.

An Easy Day in the Kitchen

ALADDIN ALUMINUM saves time, work, and fuel. Aladdin utensils have that lightness, that strength and usefulness—above all, that refinement—that helps create a glow of honest pride in your tools and work.

Well-selected aluminum vessels—the heavy Aladdin kind—are cheapest in the long run. They are wholesome to use—free from poisonous substances—instant "dirt detectives"—and almost everlasting. Start now and build up your set of Aladdin ware—you'll still have some of it left years hence to hand down when you pass housekeeping responsibilities into younger hands. The Palais Royal Basement Store features the genuine Aladdin—the trade-mark is on every piece.

A DEMONSTRATOR FROM THE FACTORY IS HERE—GO TO BASEMENT STORE.

Saucepans

Here's another fine idea! Not merely the double lips which make left-hand pouring as easy as right-hand pouring—but the shape of the lip itself. It is scientifically formed for pouring and so eliminates the nuisance of spilling. Handles that fit the hand—covers that fit the vessels.

Kettles

To use as Preserving Kettles or Berlin Kettles. Besides, and best of all, use it as a Roaster. For a "pot roast" on top of the stove nothing equals it. Put your meat in without water, place kettle over a slow fire and see how beautiful and juicy will be your roast. The "self basting" cover keeps it moist. Moreover, it is browned uniformly all over because Aluminum of all metals heats most quickly and evenly.

Skillets

When you can get a less expensive aluminum skillet than the cast pieces you have been using, and at the same time get better service, you can at once discard all the clumsy, old-fashioned, hard-to-clean iron and steel ware. The Aladdin Sheet Skillet has all the advantages of lightness, while being practically unbreakable, withstanding the roughest usage.

Combination

You can make a first-rate double boiler with one of our sheet tea kettles and an Aladdin inset—two utensils in one. One cover does for both—an Aladdin economy feature—everything in standard sizes that fit each other. And note the handle's big triangular base—rivets wide apart—50 per cent stronger than any other handle. Snug fit—hung right—easy to lift. Demonstrated here, to your entire satisfaction, by an expert.

NEW YORK, DAY BY DAY By O. O. McINTYRE.

Special Correspondent of The Washington Herald.
New York, Oct. 3.—The other afternoon I strolled by a large New York high school with my new white gloves and rosewood silver handled stick on my way to tea. I felt foolish and looked it.

As I passed the school one young man nudged his companions and said: "Well, as I live and breathe, it is none other than our dashing hero Robert Hilliard." And a second whispered so you could hear him in Hong Kong: "Well, well, if it ain't out again."

And a third shouted: "Somebody ought to step on it—it is suffering." And just then a friend came along and picked me up in his car and my face was burning red and I was against the higher education.

I told my friend what had happened and he grew indignant with me and we wondered what was going to happen when the coming generation grew up and started out in life insulting their elders. We harked back to the way we had been brought up.

And then we got to laughing at the fun we had when we were young and hopeful. I recalled how I fastened the walnuts on the cat's feet and then tossed her into the Widow Koler's home, where there was no carpet, and she almost died of fright, and my friend recalled how he stretched a rope across the sidewalk to trip up a harmless old man who always wore a silk hat.

We drove back around by the high school and the boys hooted again: "Here comes the guy with the white clothes!" And I laughed with them, and when we drove away, they cheered.

An observer of New York life has noted that there are no more wax heads in the shop windows. Not one could be found in a tour of the city. They have always been more or less of a bugaboo to people with an artistic sense, but nothing was ever done until a man began writing to newspapers about how ugly the wax figures were. He kept it up and one by one the wax heads disappeared.

Song writers as press agents! That seems to be the latest stunt. A window in the largest Broadway musical store is filled with the covers of a new song which is an autographed picture of President Wilson.

"I WISH EVERYBODY
COULD KNOW WHAT A FINE THING IT IS"

Mr. Roulston Suffered from Acute
Indigestion, Gastritis and Constipation.

"When I began taking Drecto I was truly in a bad shape, but a few bottles have put me on my feet again and I feel I must tell everybody about it," said Mr. Jno. Roulston, of 823 Fifth Street Northeast, who has been baggage master on the Pennsylvania Railroad from Washington to New York for many years.

"For a number of years I have suffered from indigestion in the acute form. Any solid food would sour in my stomach, form gas and bloat me all up. Sometimes I'd have smothering spells and feel like my breath would stop. I got nervous and dizzy and right giddy-headed, and never got a good full night's rest. At times I would be badly constipated, too."

"Nothing the doctors gave me seemed to do any good, and I kept growing worse. Several friends advised me to take Drecto, and it certainly is wonderful the way it has helped me. It was just what I needed. Before I finished the first bottle I could sleep better, my food did not cause the pains and gas as it formerly did, my constipation passed away. Am never bothered with the swimming in the head any more, and I breathe free and easy, and it's been many a day since I've felt as good as I do now. I'm more than grateful for what it has done for me and I wish everybody could know what a wonderful medicine it is."

Drecto is sold in all the O'Donnell Drug Stores, Bury's in Anacostia, Allen's in Alexandria.—Adv.

ALAN DALE.
DRAMATIC CRITIC
AND THEATRICAL WRITER

Wright Avenue, Bayside, N. Y.
January 30th, '16.

My dear Mr. Morosco:—

I'm dashing you off this line to tell you that "The Cinderella Man" captured me completely. It was so full of the right sort of implied, and not expressed pathos that -- callous theatre-goer that I am! -- I felt the "lump in the throat." Then it was so delightfully acted by the Man and the Woman. I don't know that girl, but the "fairy godmother" idea fitted her absolutely. Pathos, and never bathos! That was the charm of the little play. I intended to stay for an act -- to tell you the truth, the prospect of the piece did not allure me -- but I remained to the end, and when I went out, I didn't feel at all chatty. It had "got" at my soft spot.

This is NOT for publication. It is just private -- impulsively private -- and you know I am a busy "magaziniest" at present, and can use all my own "thoughts."

Sincerely,

Alan Dale
